Live Broadcast hosted by Media & Palestine Students in Solidarity with Palestine

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

BEIRUT, Lebanon (November 29, 2024) – The students of the Media & Palestine course will host a live broadcast both virtually and on the Lebanese American University campus in Beirut to mark the United Nations’ annual International Day of Solidarity with the Palestinian People. The broadcast will air on Friday, November 29, from 12:30 PM to 1:45 PM Al Quds time, to highlight the Palestinian struggle during the ongoing genocide in Gaza and the war on Lebanon.

Under the supervision of Dr. Gretchen King, the students of the Media & Palestine course will produce and present this live broadcast, covering a range of topics. Their content includes interviews, videos, podcasts, and more, all aimed at challenging dominant narratives surrounding the genocide in Palestine.

Yasmina El Zein, a Multimedia Journalism student said this live broadcast is important because “it is student-led from A to Z and it sheds light on important topics based on course learning outcomes.”

Communication student Abdallah Almomani described this event as “a perfect demonstration of civil participation. It shows how young scholars and journalists can engage critical topics, harness media, and truly become advocates for change.”
